News from the Working Group on the evaluation of testimonials

A Working Group has undertaken a research project to evaluate the impact of public testimonials by people living with HIV/AIDS (a partnership between 4 persons who give testimonials, 5 communities organisations and 4 research and teaching institutions). Currently, the Group is choosing examples of testimonials from our archive, which will be the foundation for future analysis. A corpus of 82 examples from various media (community, general, specialized, independent, etc.) was formed. A more narrow selection will be made and evaluation criteria will be developed. So far, the preliminary version of the "evaluation grid" has raised much lively discussion. The Working Group aims to produce a useful tool that can assess the impact and role of testimonials in social intervention as well as public awareness.
